ENEL AMERICAS INCLUDED IN S&P DOW JONES SUSTAINABILITY INDEX WITH HIGHEST EVER SCORE

- Inclusion on the index reflects companies' commitment to sustainable development, clean energy electrification, innovation, and responsible business management practices.
- This year, Enel features in three categories of the Dow Jones Sustainability Index: Emerging Markets, Integrated Market of the Pacific Alliance (MILA), and Chile. The company also returned to the FTSE4Good Latin America Markets Index and the FTSE4Good Emerging Index, which it joined in 2017.

Santiago, December 12, 2022 - Enel Américas again included in three categories of the Dow Jones Sustainability Index: Emerging Markets, Integrated Market of the Pacific Alliance (MILA), and Chile, after obtaining its highest ever score of 87/100.

International data research firm S&P Global identifies companies included on the Dow Jones Sustainability Index through its prestigious global evaluation model 'Corporate Sustainability Assessment,' which considers 27 criteria in the electricity sector when evaluating more than 250 companies worldwide.

"We greatly appreciate this achievement as it demonstrates that sustainability is at the core of our business. Today our operations and investment decisions are guided by the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and focus on emission-free power generation and more efficient energy solutions. All of the above contribute to more sustainable energy production," said Maurizio Bezzeccheri, CEO of Enel Americas.

Globally, the Enel Group received a score of 90/100 in its nineteenth year of participating in DJSI World. At the same time, its Spanish subsidiary, Endesa, was also included in the index with a score of 89/100.

FTSE4Good: Further recognition of Enel's transparent and sustainable strategy

Enel Américas also featured this year in the FTSE4Good Emerging Index and the FTSE4Good Latin America Markets Index. Both indexes form part of the FTSE4Good series. They include companies listed on global stock exchanges that adhere to high environmental, social, and governance (ESG) standards based on responsible investment principles.

FTSE4Good was created by global index company FTSE Russell, which is part of the London Stock Exchange Group and is a series of indexes designed to promote investment in sustainable companies. Transparent management and clarity in defining ESG criteria make FTSE4Good indexes suitable tools for many investors when creating or considering investing in sustainable products.

The FTSE4Good comprises more than 300 indicators reflected across 14 different themes and grouped into three areas: environmental, social, and corporate governance. It aims to tackle environmental aspects such as climate change, pollution, resources, water use, biodiversity, and ecological management. Also, from a social point of view, it reviews labor standards, health and safety, human and community rights, customer responsibility, and social leadership. The third area evaluates corporate governance, risk management, fiscal transparency, and anti-corruption policies.
